DECISION TIME--All the arguing and spending will stop next Tuesday, when voters across the country make their decisions on candidates for state and national office. SAD 44 area voters will face a ballot similar to the one above, which covers Bethel, Gilead, Hanover and Newry. Other contests on local ballots include Senate District 15 (including Greenwood, Woodstock and West Paris) where Republican Dana Hanley and Democrat James Wilfong are battling for the seat vacated by retiring incumbent Don Twitchell; House District 52 (Woodstock), where Republican Robert Cameron and Democrat Sonja Hodgkins are seeking Ida Luther's former House seat; House District 51 (West Paris), where Democrat Mary Ryan Adams and Republican Brenda Berney-Quint are seeking Dana Hanley's former seat; and House District 50 (Greenwood) where Republican incumbent Richard Bennett is unopposed. Voters Tuesday will also decide on nearly $50 million in proposed bond issues and three proposed amendments to the Maine Constitution.

Heavy election turnout expected

There's still time to register

Local election officials are bracing themselves for a very busy night next Tuesday, as election interest and voter registrations are surging throughout the area--mirroring the trend throughout the rest of the state and nation.

Bethel Town Clerk Merton Brown is predicting a turnout of 1500 voters in town, an increase of 400 from the 1988 presidential election (when nationwide only 50 percent of all eligible voters bothered to cast their ballots).

Brown and other local town clerks report a sharp increase not only in registrations but also in the number of absentee ballots being cast (see box for how to do both).

Brown said that as of Tuesday, with the election still a week away, he had received 112 absentee ballots--compared with only 125 cast by Election Day in 1988.

Kids join in

Local children are also joining in the Election Day activity.

A number of local schools are holding mock elections, and in Bethel children will have their own polling hours at the fire station on Monday from 9 to 11 a.m.

The youngsters take their ballot, go into a booth to fill it out, then put it in a ballot box--and later help tally the election results. A similar vote will be held in Woodstock.

How to register

To vote, you need only be a United States citizen, 18 years old and a resident of the town in which you register.

You can register up to Election Day at the town office (bring along some proof of residency). On Election Day you can register at your local polling place. But election officials caution that the lines might be long on Election Day, so it's best to register ahead of time if at all possible.

Registration applications are also available at motor vehicle registration offices and can be mailed in to your local town office. However, in towns smaller than 2500 people mail-in registrations must be received five days prior to Election Day.

If you move to a different community, you must reregister to vote.

Absentee voting

If you are unable to reach your polling place Election Day you are probably eligible to vote by absentee ballot.

The simplest way to vote absentee, if you are able, is to cast your vote at the town office prior to Election Day. That can be done at any time the office is open between now and Election Day.

Most local town clerks are also willing to come to your home to take your ballot if you are unable to come in to the office.

Mail-in ballots are also available, but the process is somewhat more cumbersome, and with time growing short it's best to call your town office as soon as possible for details.

THROWING IN HIS HAT--The sign on Arnie Brown's lawn last week seemed to indicate that Bethel would have a hometown candidate for governor next year. But actually his wife, Mary, picked up New Hampshire gubernatorial candidate Arnie Arnesen's campaign sign at Democratic headquarters in Berlin. Brown said its highly unlikely he'll be seeking Maine's highest office any time soon, but Mary said campaign donations can be dropped at the couple's home.

G'wood confronts code violations Bethel tax bills out but not up

By WENDY HANSCOM

Greenwood selectmen say new construction at a Twitchell Pond camp was done without a permit. But the camp's owner denies violating the town's shoreland zoning ordinances.

The selectmen are following up on a report from the town's Code Enforcement Officer, Sam Timberlake, who said the camp owned by Louis Marrone of Fort Myers, Fla. has had extensive additions to it without permission from the town's planning board.

Marrone, however, told The Citizen Monday night that he had only replaced one set of stairs at the camp. But later Monday evening, he told planning board member Stacy Benjamin that he also built a "access deck and small shed" on the property, she said.

CEO Timberlake told the selectmen last week that a small outbuilding, large decks, an apparent extra room (which faces the pond) and several sets of steps and walkways have been added to the camp.

"A tremendous amount of work has been done to the camp," Timberlake said, "strictly in violation of the town's ordinances and codes."

Marrone said he applied for a building permit two years ago and was never informed it was turned down until he asked planning board chairman Wayne Hakala last summer about the ruling.

Benjamin said that the planning board reviewed another application for the camp this spring, but Marrone's representative was told that the application could not be acted on as written because the proposals violated the town's shoreland zoning ordinance.

The camp is located on the shoreline, Benjamin said, and can only be increased in size by 30 per-

Bethel tax bills go out this week, but for one year at least residents will not face a tax increase.

The town assessors have set the tax rate for fiscal 1993 at last year's rate of 14.75 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

The total amount to be raised by local taxation is $1,845,520, up only $2,612 from last year's figure.

The town saw an increase of nearly $28,000 in its SAD 44 school assessment this year, and it lost approximately $15,000 in state revenue sharing.

But these were offset by a decrease of roughly $20,000 in the

Rebels begin playoffs with overtime win

By WENDY HANSCOM

The Telstar High School field hockey team played one of its best games of the season Thursday and beat North Yarmouth Academy 1-0 in quarterfinal Western Maine Class C playoffs.

The Rebels travel to top seeded Yarmouth High School today for the 2:30 p.m. semifinal contest.

In Thursday's game, senior Kelsey Cross tapped in a pass from senior Noelle Gauthier with four minutes and three seconds remaining in overtime to win the game.

The Rebels dominated most of the game, applying pressure until Cross' overtime score. Telstar had 16 penalty corners in the second half and sent several shots wide of the net.

But the Rebel's aggressive play was costly. Junior starting half-back Misty Hutchins injured her knee in the second half. Hutchins will be out for at least today's game, according to co-coach Gail Wright.

Sheila Douglass will probably step in for Hutchins, with Amy Patten, Dawn Seames and Sara Coolidge also substituting, Wright said.

Telstar did not play Yarmouth during the regular season, so the coaches don't know what to expect--except a very tough opponent. Yarmouth is 12-0-2 for the season.

"Most playoff games are won or lost 1-0," Wright said. "All the leagues seem to be tough. We don't expect it to be easy."

If the Rebels win today's game, they will play Traip at home or Jay away in the Western Maine Class C finals scheduled for Saturday.

POST-SEASON CHARGE--Telstar's Stacie Kangas rushes down field during Thursday's game against North Yarmouth Academy. The Rebels beat NYA 1-0 in overtime. Telstar plays the semi-final Western Maine Class C tournament game at Yarmouth High School today.

More bonds and amendments

In addition to selecting their state and national political leaders Tuesday, Maine voters will also vote on nearly $50 million ($60 million plus when interest is figured in) of proposed bond issues, as well as three proposed constitutional amendments.

As is usually the case at election time, the bond proposals represent a mix of sound investment proposals and blatant cop-outs by our elected decision makers in Augusta.

In tough economic times it is tempting to just say "no" across the board to bond issues, holding off long-term investments until we feel flusher. In fact, this is pretty much what voters did in last November's election, when they rejected all bond issues but one (the one that came with a 400 percent federal match).

That's the easy solution, but not the responsible one.

Questions 1 and 4 on this year's ballot represent good examples of the prudent use of the state's borrowing power. Voters who believe that the state, like a growing business, requires investment to prosper and remain competitive should consider a "yes" vote on each of these.

Question 1 would authorize the state to issue $10 million in bonds to purchase recycling equipment and close solid waste landfills. The bond has the support of a broad (and rare) coalition of business and environmental groups. The Citizen supported a similar bond issue last year, but voters narrowly defeated it. We urge them to reconsider.

Question 4 would authorize a $12 million bond issue for the construction of water pollution control facilities--and would make the state eligible for a match of approximately $30 million in federal money. Like Question 1, this proposal offers a chance to stimulate economic activity while strengthening the state's infrastructure and cleaning up our environment. It's a good long-term investment.

The remaining four bond issues are also for worthwhile undertakings, but we'll be voting against them.

Question 2 asks for $6 million to repair publicly owned port facilities, and Question 3 asks for another $8 million for repair of other state facilities. But maintenance costs, as we and numerous others have repeatedly argued, should be handled out of the state's operating budget, not funded by bond issues. Vote "no" and send them back to the legislature where they belong.

Question 5 is similarly worthwhile, but must also be rejected in the name of fiscal responsibility. The proposal calls for issuing $10 million to pay the tuition of unemployed Mainers to the state's technical college system, where they would be retrained in skills that are in demand in the job market. But tuition costs, like maintenance costs, should not be underwritten with state borrowing. Reluctantly we urge a "no" vote on Question 5.

Question 6 calls for $3 million to acquire railroad lines in rural Piscataquis, Penobscot and Waldo counties. Railroads have an important role to play in the state's future, but the reestablishment of the railroads as part of a coherent state transportation network requires a master plan and clear set of priorities--not the piecemeal purchase of a line here and some rolling stock there. We recommend against Question 6.

That leaves three constitutional amendments.

Question 7 provides for interim coverage of the offices of Treasurer and Secretary of State in the event a vacancy occurs while the legislature (which appoints both) is not in session. It's an unobjectionable piece of civic housekeeping. We see no reason not to approve it.

Question 8, the subject of an extensive advertising campaign, would require that all funds (licenses, fees, fines, etc.) generated by the Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife be retained for the use of that department. IF&W activities are no doubt worthwhile, but are they more worthwhile than other state activities--say: education, public safety, health?

And even if the proposed amendment passed, IF&W would continue to tap the General Fund to cover its shortfalls. Times are tough, and IF&W has certainly taken budget hits, but so have other state departments. There is no compelling reason for IF&W to have special treatment (which currently only the Department of Transportation enjoys). We urge voters to ignore the special interests and ads and turn this bit of fiscal irresponsibility down.

Finally, Question 9, which would make it much more difficult (but not impossible) for the state legislature in Augusta to impose unfunded mandates on towns and municipalities.

No more unfunded mandates--need we say more? Vote "yes."

Letters to the editor

THANKS AND GRATITUDE

To the Editor:

This is a letter of thanks and gratitude. There is so much to say and so many thanks to give still. On Sept. 25 my family and many other people had a great loss. Brenda and Lee Gray died in a plane crash on Mt. Will. That was a very long night into Saturday. The only bright spot that night was Karen lived and somehow made it down that mountain. She is one strong lady, what she went through none of us will ever begin to know, the fears, the uncertainty and her own pain.

The outpouring from our little town has been unreal. All the help we had in finding the plane, and then to bring them down. I really do not know how you all did it. But, thank you! The Burks and the Harringtons, what nice people, again, thank you! All of our friends and family that stayed with us at the Harringtons waiting. You just being there was nice and a big help, thank you. You were there for the days, weeks and month that followed. Also, thank you.

The funeral was overwhelming as well. The honor everyone paid to them was truly beautiful. I am proud of them and miss them so. I say thank you for making this as easy as it could be and all the help you've given me and my family. This is a great little town we have here. Please always remember that. They knew what a great place this was. Thank you!

Christine Blake
Bethel

THANK YOU

To the Editor:

I would like to take the opportunity to thank all parents and students who participated in last Saturday's soccer game at CPS.

Even though during the game the rain came down in buckets, we kept right on playing. Through the parents and children's smiles and laughing (at us slipping and falling down on the wet grass) the sun did shine.

Once again, thanks, for the cooperation and let's keep up all this positive support for our children's futures.

Kelly Vascik

WALK 92 FOR AIDS

To the Editor:

The third annual Maine AIDS WALK 92, was held in Rumford, Sunday, Oct. 4 and the participants represented the towns of Bryant Pond, Andover, Canton, Mexico, West Peru, Dixfield, Frye, and Rumford.

In a brief presentation prior to the WALK, Dr. Terry MacKnight of the Mexico Walk In Clinic pointed out that the World Health Organization estimates that there are 12 million people infected with HIV, 50 percent of whom are women.

After the WALK, Linda Blackman and Elaine Michaud, the duo "Clover," sang to the accompaniment of keyboard and guitar, and refreshments were provided by women of the Mexico Congregational Church.

Since the WALK, the following contributions have been made and Community AIDS Awareness Program wishes to thank Wendy Penley of Bethel, Rotary Club of Bethel, Thomas Carey and Associates of Rumford, Doctors Peter and Erica-Jed Harbage of Norway, and Oxford Hills Foot Care of South Paris.

The most recent total raised for WALK-92 is $2,500.

GRAHAM

To the Editor:

I am writing to encourage the residents of House District 49 to vote for Rockie Graham for state representative. Rockie is running for election to the Maine House of Representatives in the Nov. 3 general election.

Rockie is traveling throughout the many towns that comprise the legislative district in an effort to knock on every door and meet and talk with as many people as possible. She is working very hard to earn your support, and I know that she will put that same kind of dedication and determination into the job as your state representative in Augusta. I feel one of the most important qualities in any public official is being responsive and committed to the people who elect you to office. I believe Rockie will be this kind of elected official, willing to work as hard and as long as it takes to represent you and your family's needs in Augusta and to making state government more responsive to your needs.

We need more people like Rockie Graham in state government, and I hope you will consider her candidacy very seriously on election day.

Jeffery N. Mills
State Senator
District 8

GRAHAM

To the Editor:

No one needs to look any further than their own families, relatives, or neighbors to find someone without a job. It is sad to see heads of families, teens, young adults, and displaced older workers without the income for basic personal and family needs. Purchasing even minimal health insurance is an unaffordable luxury. The American dream of owning your own home has turned depressing. Many in Western Maine are trapped between the lack of real paying year-round jobs and the need for more job training.

Rockie Graham, candidate for House District seat 49 against incumbent Al Barth, understands these needs. She has 25 years experience working in public policy and education directly affecting the issues of jobs training, health care, and support of families. I was inspired this election to work on Rockie's campaign when I saw her commitment to listen to and represent the working and struggling families and individuals of Western Maine. This is evident by Rockie reaching her goal this week of knocking on every door in this district from Rangeley to Lovell. She has heard that people want a change in Augusta to someone who will listen to and work for their needs.

Governor McKernan and Republican legislators who rubberstamp his policies have abandoned the working class people of Maine. Al Barth, for example, supports a taxpayer subsidized voucher system for parents that choose to send their children to private and religious schools. This only serves to gut what dwindling state support there is for our public schools and further divides the people of Maine between the haves and have nots. Rockie is against this. Good health is a result of living in a clean and sound environment. Rockie has a long record of working toward natural resource protection for sportsman, tourism, and wildlife. Al Barth, on the other hand, has a low 20 percent rating on environmental voting as compiled by the League of Conservation Voters.

The choice is clear. If you are upset with the way things are, vote for a change. Rockie Graham is willing to work as hard for you in Augusta as she has been doing selflessly behind the scenes for her community all these years. It's time to get the job done.

Donald Murphy
Campaign Manager
for Rockie Graham

GRAHAM

To the Editor:

I look forward to Nov. 3 because I will have the chance to demonstrate my support for a candidate I can trust to get the job done. I will be voting for Rockie Graham to represent us in District 49.

I have known Rockie for several years, and would like to express the positive qualities she will bring to our constituency. Rockie has the desire and ability to communicate meaningfully with a wide variety of people from different backgrounds. Another quality Rockie possesses is frankness and honesty. She is not interested in "playing games" but rather in getting to the heart of every matter. In addition, she is a problem-solver and a team player. I have observed Rockie's ability to examine an issue from all sides in order to reach a solution. Finally, she is a dedicated worker, who will stick to a task until it is done.

Please think about these qualities as you head to the polls. I know Rockie will be a strong force for us in Augusta.

Martha Hoeh Siegel

HANLEY AND HANSEN

To the Editor:

Oxford County is indeed fortunate to have two outstanding candidates for the State Senate running this year. Dana Hanley (District 15) and Carl Hansen (District 8) are precisely the kind of leaders we need in the Maine Legislature if we are "to turn the corner" so to speak and begin to put this state on a sound footing. Both candidates know that small business is the backbone of the State's economy. All efforts must be made by state government not to hinder the growth of small business with high taxes, sky rocketing workman's comp rates, and needless regulation.

Dana and Carl are also committed to downsizing state government, making it more efficient and effective. They realize that for too long that Maine has been living beyond its means and we must set priorities in order to see that limited dollars help those most in need and are not wasted on projects of dubious merit. Carl and Dana are young and dynamic candidates with fresh ideas and a commitment to hard work on behalf of the people of Western Maine. I hope you will join me in supporting them on Nov. 3.

Stan Howe
Chairman, Oxford County
Republican Committee

LUTHER

To the Editor:

As you already know, I have decided not to seek another term as state senator. I am writing to encourage the citizens of senate district 8 to vote for Ida Luther as their next State Senator.

Ida has served the people of Hartford, Mexico, Roxbury and Rumford for the past four years as their state representative. During that time Ida has distinguished herself as a champion of the hard-working people of her district and all of Maine. Ida has been an outspoken

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

Members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the next monthly meeting will be held on Nov. 5 in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Featured during the program portion of the meeting will be a look at the history of Grover Hill by Mary C. Keniston, who along with Society curator of collections Randall H. Bennett have been working on the history of this area for a number of months. Anyone interested in attending this meeting is cordially invited to do so.

Approximately 55 percent of the 1992 goal has been reached to date for the Society's endowment campaign. Among the most recent donors are: Althea G. Noyes, Falmouth; William H. Kieffer, Bethel; Don and Peggy Tobin, Bandera, Texas, in memory of Florence Twitchell Tobin; Marilyn A. Parker, Milford, Conn., in memory of Guy Parker, Jr.; Howard and Alice Fales, West Redding, Conn.; Frederick and Ice LaPlante, Damascus, Md.; Daniel J. and Mary Anne Murphy, Dracut, Mass.; Lonnie and Freda Davis, Bethel, in memory of Gladys Cross; Helen A. ### WILFONG

To the Editor:

Recent debates about the candidates for Senate District 15 have centered around Jim Wilfong's superior credentials among the business community and his support of education.

I am writing to let voters know that Jim Wilfong also has an excellent track record on criminal justice issues.

Jim Wilfong served in the Legislature in the late 1970s at the height of criminal justice reform in the State of Maine. During that time he voted to streamline our criminal code to make it more understandable and effective; he voted for mandatory minimum sentences for murderers and against parole. Wilfong supported determinate sentences, unified courts and mandatory sentences for crimes committed with firearms.

Jim Wilfong has a proven and positive track record on law enforcement issues and would be a tremendous asset to this community in the Maine Senate.

A GOOD CAMPAIGN

To the Editor:

I wanted to share with you and your readers a portion of a recent letter I sent to Dana Hanley, my opponent for the State Senate District 15 seat. "Thank you for your efforts to keep your campaign positive and for sticking to the issues. All around us, at both the state and national level, the mud-slinging, finger-pointing and name-calling have been taken to an all-time low. Our campaigns have been just the opposite and the people have been well served..."

Along with an effort to keep the campaign focused on ideas, I have also tried to keep the costs of campaigning at a reasonable level. I promised not to spend more than $10,000 on this campaign. I will spend about half that amount. I promised not to accept special interest P.A.C. money. I have not. I will not. Government at all levels is spending more money than the people can afford. Government will have to be more creative and inventive.

Political campaigns in recent times have been the best that money can buy. One primary campaign this year spent $92,000. Spending excessive amounts of money in the name of acquiring a public service job is a disgrace. If I win this election, spending this little, the special interests in Augusta will be concerned. The message to other candidates, in the future will be, don't take the P.A.C. money. The people of Maine will be the winners.

Finally, the people of Western Maine have renewed my faith and restored my optimism. They have been friendly and supportive. They want a government that understands and addresses their concerns. I am sure that if we work together we can reach those goals. It's time for a change.

PEROT

To the Editor:

After having followed the presidential campaign for the past few weeks, I now believe that Ross Perot is clearly the best choice to restore some measure of fiscal sanity to our country.

Twelve years of laissez-faire, "trickle down" economics combined with the United States being the world's largest insurer (where we insure practically everything under the sun except our own people's health care) has increased our national debt from $1 trillion to over $4 trillion dollars. Every man, woman, and child in the United States now owes in excess of $16,000 in federal debt. Our indebtedness is now increasing at a rate exceeding $1 billion dollars per day, which is equivalent to three strips of 10-dollar bills laid side by side from George Bush's summer home at Walker's Point in Kennebunkport to Ronald Reagan's estate in San Clemente, California; or, if you prefer, from George Mitchell's South Portland home to

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

Members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the next monthly meeting will be held on Nov. 5 in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Featured during the program portion of the meeting will be a look at the history of Grover Hill by Mary C. Keniston, who along with Society curator of collections Randall H. Bennett have been working on the history of this area for a number of months. Anyone interested in attending this meeting is cordially invited to do so.

Approximately 55 percent of the 1992 goal has been reached to date for the Society's endowment campaign. Among the most recent donors are: Althea G. Noyes, Falmouth; William H. Kieffer, Bethel; Don and Peggy Tobin, Bandera, Texas, in memory of Florence Twitchell Tobin; Marilyn A. Parker, Milford, Conn., in memory of Guy Parker, Jr.; Howard and Alice Pales, West Redding, Conn.; Frederick and Ice LaPlante, Damascus, Md.; Daniel J. and Mary Anne Murphy, Dracut, Mass.; Lonnie and Freda Davis, Bethel, in memory of Gladys Cross; Helen A. Kraul, Portland, in memory of Karl O. Kraul; Eugenia Skinner Shorrocks, Dover, N.H.; Brad and Judy Barker, Bethel, in memory of John H. Currier; Dana and Barbara Douglass, Bethel; Dexter and Janet Stowell, Bethel; Millie Wentzell, West Baldwin, in memory of Stanley H. Wentzell (1893-1978). Much appreciation is expressed to all of the above for their generosity. To date there have been 175 donors to the 1992 campaign.

Ida Luther has also been a tireless advocate and supporter of the people she represents. Whether it was a problem with bureaucratic red tape, an answer to a question about state government, or helping someone truly in need, Ida was always available to lend a helping hand or an understanding ear. Her efforts on behalf of her constituents are highly commendable. I know she will bring the same dedication and commitment to the Maine Senate and to all the people in Senate District 8.

I strongly endorse Rep. Ida Luther for the Maine Senate.

WILFONG
To the Editor:
Recent debates about the candidates for Senate District 15 have centered around Jim Wilfong's superior credentials among the business community and his support of education.

I am writing to let voters know that Jim Wilfong also has an excellent track record on criminal justice issues.

Jim Wilfong served in the Legislature in the late 1970s at the height of criminal justice reform in the State of Maine. During that time he voted to streamline our criminal code to make it more understandable and effective; he voted for mandatory minimum sentences for murderers and against parole. Wilfong supported determinate sentences, unified courts and mandatory sentences for crimes committed with firearms.

Jim Wilfong has a proven and positive track record on law enforcement issues and would be a tremendous asset to this community in the Maine Senate.

Tom Foley's residence in Spokane, Washington. This is outrageous, and apparently Ross Perot is the only candidate seriously considering doing something about it.

Bush has been calling Clinton a liar, and Clinton has been calling Bush a liar. They have convinced me they are both correct.

The Republicans call the Democrats "The Tax and Spend Party," and the Democrats call the Republicans "The Borrow and Spend Party." Once again they both appear to be correct.

The one ray of hope appearing on the horizon seems to be Ross Perot. Believe me, a vote for Ross Perot is not a wasted vote. In fact, it seems to me that it is the only logical way to vote if you want to return some measure of sanity to our sick government.

BUSH

To the Editor:

I have read with great interest the recent letters to the editor insisting that the problems of the country rest squarely on the shoulders of the president of the United States.

I have heard that the real problem with our government is in fact the Congress, but since we can't change the Congress let's give them a Democratic President as well. It seems to me that since we can't stop the fox from getting in the chicken coop we better add more chickens.

I don't think it takes a Rhodes scholar (graduated or not) to remember what it was like the last time we had a Congress and an Oval Office controlled by the Democrats. We had double digit interest rates, inflation through the roof, and the situation was so bad that the media coined the phrase "misery index."

It doesn't take an economic genius to realize that (buzz word) "tax and spend" theory has failed. If I make one dollar and spend two I will be operating at a deficit. It is no more complicated than that.

It is the Congress that spends money not the President. When President Bush sent the Congress a major defense cut they took that and doubled it with more domestic spending.

The argument over the presidential veto override is tiresome. If Congress believed in the bills they were sending the President they would have overridden more than just a bill over cable television.

I suggest that the Congress knew these were bad pieces of legislation and sent them on to the President with the intention of having them vetoed. Why would they do such a thing? It is now four years later, time for re-election and they are convincing their constituency back home and the rest of the American people that it isn't their fault but the insensitivity of President Bush. Nonsense.

It is my belief that the president of the United States should be dealing with matters on the international scene and it is Congress that should be dealing with the domestic problems.

It has been on the watch of President Bush that the international picture is so much brighter and safer. Under the President's watch the Iron Curtain has fallen, a Middle East danger has been removed, dictators in our own hemisphere have been removed and the respect for the United States has grown greatly.

Under the watchful eye of the Democratic party the economy has flattered because of the outrageous (oops, another buzz word) "gridlock" that cannot be broken. They spend the money and it is they who stand in the way of meaningful economic reform.

Remember back to when President Bush passed the "Read My Lips" tax increase. He fought the Democrats' Congress tooth and nail. He passed it with great reluctance only after a promise of no further spending by the Congress. Read their lips now.

If you want to send a message to Congress re-elect the president. We have an opportunity to send all of Washington the message that we don't like the way they are doing things and we want them to straighten it out.

Give the president line item veto.
Give the American people term limitations.

Give the president an opportunity to deal with over a 100 new Congressmen with the above messages.

To those of you who are considering Ross Perot, I don't think he can win, even though it might be fun, so I would suggest that you consider a vote for President Bush.

If we send Bill Clinton to Washington it will be the same as telling Congress to continue on with business as usual and that we agree with everything that they have done over the past decades of tax and spend.

Sen. Mitchell backs Graham

U.S. Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell spoke with a group of close to 50 at a reception for House District 49 candidate Rockie Graham Sunday afternoon at the Hammons House in Bethel.

Mitchell endorsed Graham's candidacy, and credited her specifically with having the gumption to run for office in a year when elected officials are under a high degree of criticism. Graham responded by saying she had worked on several campaigns for the senator and joked that it was an honor to have him now "working" for her.

Mitchell spoke frankly to the largely Democratic group about his hopes for a Clinton victory in Tuesday's presidential election, and pointed to his frequent difficulties dealing with President Bush in enacting legislation. "The past 12 years have seen an elevation of the selfish pursuits of the individual at the expense of the public good," he said. Mitchell backed Clinton's ability to use the power of the Oval Office to lead the country by bringing people together, rather than pulling them apart.

The gathering was attended by a large contingent of Democratic Party candidates and supporters, and District Attorney Janet Mills, who is seeking the office of Attorney General this year. Mitchell quipped that, in this area, Clinton and Gore should have a pretty easy time riding on the coattails of such a strong slate of local Democrats.

The turnout was double that at the previous reception for the senator at the Hammons House in 1990. Local Democrats say they are guardedly optimistic about a resurgence in the strength of the Democratic party in the Bethel area.

CARL HANSEN

By CAVERNAUGH KELLY

The current economic crisis is the most pressing issue facing Maine along with the failure of the legislature to recognize the importance of business and build for the future, said District 8 state Senate candidate Carl Hansen, R-Bethel.

Hansen is contesting Ida Luther, D-Mexico, for the seat vacated by Jeff Mills of Rumford.

Hansen believes the legislature needs to cooperate with the private sector to "create a business environment" that provides jobs and recognizes the importance of small business.

"Eighty-five percent of the jobs that will be provided to the people in the State of Maine are going to be provided by small business," said Hansen.

Hansen, a contractor and co-owner of a small toy company, is the chairman of the delegation to the state convention, deacon of the West Parish Congregational Church, vice chairman of the Bethel Republican Town Committee and a member of the Small Woodland Owners Association of Maine.

Hansen said he does not have the experience to offer any specific cuts to balance the state budget.

"I think the main thing I can look at is efficiency in state government."

Look at the duplication of programs, middle and upper level management positions. We have a bureaucracy that eats up most of the money that comes in."

Hansen said all programs need to be looked at equally and fairly.

Hansen said he is a firm believer in a "pro-active" and not a "reactive" form of government.

He said an example of a pro-active approach is making absentee fathers more accountable, finding ways to "empower people to get off welfare" and help new state businesses develop a plan to meet environmental guidelines.

Hansen said the emergency taxes imposed last year should be repealed as originally designed. He feels the taxes place an additional burden on state industries already struggling to compete with other states.

To help business, Hansen supports reinforcing the Department of Economic and Community Development.

"They need to be charged with the responsibility of working with government and the private sector in building a plan for the future."

Hansen said that coalition needs to outline what kinds of business Maine wants, what it can do to attract those businesses and provide tax incentives.

"Business is not rich. Business is suffering. Businesses are closing, shutting down and leaving the state...People need to recognize business needs help."

Hansen feels tax incentives are a sound investment in the economy.

"A business employs people. They become more productive, they pay more taxes and that employee pays taxes. They spend money on the economy and the economy pays taxes," he said.

IDA LUTHER

By CAVERNAUGH KELLY

The state legislature needs to look at cutting over $11.3 billion in yearly sales and income tax exemptions to reduce the budget deficit, said District 8 state Senate candidate Ida Luther, D-Mexico.

"Before I would look at eliminating any programs I would at least look at exemptions," said Luther. "I don't see why some of these people shouldn't pick up their own fare."

Luther, 57, said non-profit organizations, including churches, should be asked to pay limited taxes on a temporary basis to get through the current economic crisis, versus "really cutting the future of the state of Maine."

Luther said nearly everybody exempted should be asked to pay a penny on the dollar before cuts are considered.

Luther listed a series of sales tax exemptions over the last two years that need to be reviewed, including $448,066,000 for sales of property used in production.

Luther is running against Carl Hansen, R-Bethel, for the position representing a wide range of towns, including Rumford, Mexico, Bethel, Wilton, Jay, Dixfield and Canton.

Luther, a housewife, has represented District 52 of the House of Representatives for the past four years. She's also served on the Rumford Water District and formerly on the Roxbury School Board.

In the legislature she has been active on environmental legislation, including laws dealing with toxic waste reduction and the winter storage of paper mill sludge.

Luther has stated she is seeking the Senate seat to have more say in the legislature and to be able to chair the labor committee.

Luther is against repealing the emergency taxes imposed last year to balance the budget.

Areas of the budget Luther feels may need to be cut include reducing the size of the legislature, eliminating the solid waste management agency and moving it to the department of natural resources and cutting back on the executive department.

Luther said reducing the legislature to 132 members "could be made to work" if rural representatives were given a 1-800 number for constituents.

Areas Luther feels need to be kept intact are state assistance for those in need and local and higher education.

To stimulate job growth, Luther said the state should invest more in tourism, work to keep businesses such as the shoe industry from leaving the country for cheap foreign labor, invest in vocational education and work to start businesses locally that complement the paper industry.

"Instead of cutting the tourism budget, we should be increasing that," said Luther. "I would really look for some growth there."

Luther added that vocational education is also a sound investment.

"On the money put into vocational schools, the

Senate District 15

DANA HANLEY

By JUDITH MEYER

State Rep. Dana Hanley says finding jobs for Maine people is the "most significant" issue facing the state as he asks voters to promote him to the Senate this year.

Hanley, the Republican candidate for Senate District 15, criticizes the Legislature for its tax-and-spend policies and has run both his House and Senate campaigns on the theme of being a political maverick who's fighting the bureaucracy.

He has battled unsuccessfully for years to limit legislative terms, reform campaign finance laws and reduce spending, among other issues.

Hanley voted in favor of the 1987 budget which raised spending by more than $500 million over two years, but rejected the budget of 1991 that included $300 million in new taxes at a time when Maine's economy had plunged into recession.

During legislative debate in the summer of 1991, Hanley announced he would not seek another term in the House. He expressed frustration that he was unable in large part because of Speaker of the House John Martin to move his proposals forward.

"As a member of the Senate, I would have a stronger voice for western Maine and would not be subjected to the dictatorial rule of the House," Hanley said in announcing his Senate bid last December.

Hanley, 30, thinks the state's economy must include a healthy manufacturing base in order to spur widespread growth. He calls for less government and less spending as lawmakers face a projected $1 billion hole in the upcoming state budget.

"We're faced with a situation where we're losing goods jobs from this state on a daily basis and a lot of that is the unresponsiveness of the Maine Legislature over the past few decades," Hanley said. "We have to give businesses a reason to stay here and expand and also to attract new businesses."

"The state of Maine can't continue its belief that we can survive without manufacturers in our economy. Tourism and the service industry are important parts of Maine's economy, but they can't carry the entire load. It's only through manufacturing products that we can create new dollars to pump into the economy."

During the last legislative session, when lawmakers faced the daunting challenge of balancing the current two-year budget, Hanley drafted a budget amendment that would have eliminated the need for the $300 million tax increase by making substantial spending cuts across state government.

Only 24 of the 186 state legislators voted in favor of the amendment, Hanley said. "I think it's insane when the state is the fourth-highest tax state in the nation, and yet we have one of the lowest per-capita incomes," he said.

In order to balance the budget for the upcoming fiscal year, Hanley suggests "privatization of all of the programs that can be privatized," such as work within the departments of environmental protection and transportation.

"The services will still be provided, but in a much more efficient manner because of the competition of the private sector."

Hanley, who is serving out his third term in the House, said services that could be targeted include various state boards and commissions that were "piled on during the economic heyday of the mid- to late 1980s."

"We must break up the bureaucratic log jam... We have a top-heavy state government, one that doesn't have to meet a bottom line."

Hanley favors ridding the state of some of its high-paid executives and demanding that union workers earn their pay or find a new job.

He proposes "doing away with the bureaucracy of state government with administrators earning more than $50,000 apiece, and a system where it's almost impossible to fire state employees who aren't giving a fair day's work for a day's wage."

For his part in supporting job growth in this state, Hanley pledges to continue with the "same thing I have been doing, which is pushing the Maine Legislature to enact legislation that would improve Maine's business environment."

"I think we have made a step forward with the worker's compensation system and getting the lawyers and doctors out of the middle and focusing on the new Labor and Management Board to make the decisions affecting employers and employees," he said.

The regulatory processes of the business community also must be curtailed, Hanley suggests. "We have to have a regulatory process where it doesn't take one-and-a-half to two years to get all the permits necessary to start up a business. Currently there are too many disincentives in Maine for a business to expand or for a new business to move to Maine."

He added, "We have to adopt some creative measures to entice good paying jobs to Maine and we should look to other states who have started this process, like Mississippi, South Carolina and Georgia."

Hanley, who was born in Massachusetts, moved to Oxford Hills when he was one year old. He graduated from Oxford Hills High School in Paris, Colby College in Waterville and then the University of Maine School of Law.

He operates a private law practice in Paris, specializing in real estate law and estate planning. He and his wife, Debra, have owned Lantern Realty since 1986.

Hanley is a deacon at the First Congregational Church in South Paris, is currently on the board of the Oxford County Regional Solid Waste Corp. and a corporator of Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway.

He is a member of the Norway-Paris Kiwanis Club, Norway-Paris Fish and Game Club, the Sportsmen's Alliance of Maine, Oxford Hills Community Partnership and the United Way of Oxford County.

His hobbies include all outdoor activities. He's also an admitted sports fanatic and enjoys playing volleyball.

JIM WILFONG

By JUDITH MEYER

The cost of state government needs to be reduced to a level Maine people can afford. Stow businessman James Wilfong asserts as he seeks election to the Senate after a 20-year hiatus from Augusta.

Government needs to be "turned on its ear" and the state budget should be stabilized on behalf of the people who pay the bills, Wilfong said.

"You can't have economic stability that can help create a better business climate without a realistic state budget that balances unlimited needs against limited resources, he said.

Wilfong, a Democrat, decries the state of state in 1992, when Mainers rank 12th in property taxation and 38th in median income. He calls for the repeal of the $300 million in "emergency" taxes imposed in 1990 to balance the budget, saying it's time government lives within its means.

Wilfong, 45, who served two terms in the House during the Longley administration in the mid-1970s, hopes to replace veteran Sen. Donald Twitchell, D-Norway.

The pair plan to campaign together in the final weeks of the race, hoping to transfer Twitchell's voter base to Wilfong.

Wilfong and his challenger, state Rep. Dana Hanley, R-Paris, agree on a number of broad issues, including the need to reform campaign spending. Wilfong led an effort earlier in the campaign to initiate spending limits on this year's candidates.

He pledged not to spend more than $10,000 on his campaign and to reject all money from political action committees, among other measures. Hanley agreed to the challenge, with a number of conditions, and other candidates in Maine stepped forward to take the pledge.

Senate President Charles Pray later climbed aboard Wilfong's campaign reform platform.

Wilfong said last week he's spent only $2,000 on his campaign. When he ran for the House in the 1970s, he spent a few hundred dollars to win election.

As Wilfong looks toward a gaping $1 billion revenue deficit for the next two-year state budget, he asserts that lawmakers must be forced to cut spending just as Maine families and businesses have been forced to over the past three years.

"We need something we can afford, something stable and predictable for the taxpayers," he said. Part of the solution cannot be to continue the 1990 tax increases, he added.

"It was promised to people that they would be repealed, and so I would vote to repeal," he said.

Wilfong, noting that no one state program can be eliminated to help offset the projected shortfall, pledged "to go after all of the middle management all across state government... That is a place that is ripe for finding budget reductions."

He estimates that the cost of the Legislature has risen 180 percent since 1978, and said he'd look for spending reductions in the House and Senate.

Additionally, he has targeted the Department of Human Services as a place to find spending cuts.

"Priorities must be set in all departments... in that department (DHS), we're going to have to look closely" for ways to reduce costs.

"We must turn government on its ear and find ways to take care of the legislative needs of society, but at the same time, it's got to be something we can afford. We can't have poor people taxed to death, which is essentially where we are now."

Wilfong has pledged to work hard to get the state's budget under control and to "find ways to make it easier to do business." He would like to see a jobs program implemented to help raise the standard of living for Maine residents.

"We will have to pay attention to education, especially the concept of lifelong learning," he said, if Maine is going to compete for jobs and prosperity in the future.

Noting that technical jobs now require more than a high school diploma, Wilfong said the state needs "a pool of employees who have higher skill levels." He also said Maine must provide a good education to all children so that managers and companies moving in from other states will "know their children will be educated."

"We have to keep the small businesses that we have" and work to attract more enterprise to the state.

Wilfong is also drawing support for his small business proposal that would allow business owners to obtain state licenses at the local level.

Wilfong, a native of Massachusetts, moved to Stow in 1955, at the age of eight. He credits his down-to-earth philosophies and a strong work ethic to his childhood years working on the family farm.

He graduated from Fryeburg Academy in 1964 and briefly attended the University of New Hampshire. He is self-employed as president of Wilfong Marketing, a national and international marketing and sales consulting firm. He worked previously in the banking industry in Boston and as director of sales and marketing for Atomic Ski.

He also is a tree farmer, growing an estimated 18,000 Christmas trees on his Stow property.

He and his wife Valerie have been married 17 years. They have two children, Liza, 9, and Christian, 6.

A former Marine, Wilfong describes himself as having "the values of a 19th century farmer."

AL BARTH

By JUDITH MEYER

Maine residents can't afford current state government. AL BARTH must balance its budget with spending cuts rather than increases, says House incumbent Al Barth Jr. of Bethel.

Barth, 56, seeking his second term from District 49, said state government "is broke" and called on voters to restructure government the way it provides services.

"The 116th Legislature is going to have to restructure state government from what it has been in the past. This can be accomplished if government sets priorities."

"We have to decide what is important, fund it adequately and make sure it works. I don't believe state government should do the things it's trying to do."

But Barth doesn't believe in the idea of across-the-board cuts. He said all programs and departments receive the same budget reduction. "That's not the way to go. That's prioritizing," he asserted, saying every program is the same and it's not. It's a "productive."

Barth was critical of the Legislature and governor in the current state budget. He said state needs to balance its check like the average Maine citizen.

"We've used up all of the money ways to balance the budget, raising taxes, shifting priorities. None of these ways are working. We have to balance the budget, Barth said. "I've consistently voted against increases. If we have to balance the budget at home, you balance state."

Barth said he supports the idea of the $300 million in taxes

House District 49

AL BARTH

By JUDITH MEYER

Maine residents can't afford their current state government and the Legislature must balance its budget with spending cuts rather than tax increases, says House incumbent Alvin Barth Jr. of Bethel.

Barth, 56, seeking his second term from District 49, said state government "is broke" and called on leaders to restructure government and the way it provides services.

"The 116th Legislature is going to have to restructure state government from what it has been in the past," he said. This can be accomplished if government sets priorities.

"We have to decide what is important, fund it adequately and make sure it works. I don't believe the state government should do all of the things it's trying to do."

But Barth doesn't believe in the idea of across-the-board cuts, where all programs and departments receive the same budget reduction. "That's not the way to go. That's not prioritizing," he asserted. "That's saying every program is worth the same and it's not. It's counterproductive."

Barth was critical of how the Legislature and governor balance the current state budget. He says the state needs to balance its checkbook like the average Maine citizen.

"We've used up all of the funny-money ways to balance the budget raising taxes, shifting payments none of these ways are left to balance the budget," Barth said. "...I've consistently voted against tax increases. If we have to balance our budget at home, you balance it at the state."

Barth said he supports the repeal of the $300 million in taxes implemented in 1990 to balance the current state budget.

"I am not in favor of temporary taxes or raising taxes to keep something that I don't think works," he said.

According to Barth, a lot of programs were added to the Department of Human Services in the 1980s, and "I think we've got to look at those and say, I'm sorry, we just can't do this anymore," as part of the solution to cutting government expenses.

He also believes that while the environmental laws enacted in this state are good ones, he doesn't like the ways the laws are enforced.

"We have good environmental laws, but we've got a (Department of Environmental Protection) whose attitude is just the opposite, in my mind, of what it should be. If you fill out more forms and jump through more hoops, eventually developers (or property owners) will go away. That attitude is dead wrong."

Barth suggests the attitude should be "how can we, the DEP, help Mr. and Mrs. Entrepreneur to meet our strict environmental regulations."

"We don't have to change the laws, just change the road-block approach," he said.

Barth said he dislikes the fact that Maine's worker's compensation insurance is the highest in the country and believes this must change if the economy is to grow at a healthy pace again.

"If we want to improve the economy, this is the way we've got to go. If we move to improve the economy, we'll have more revenue, and more to spend on programs and cuts won't be, or don't have to be, as severe."

A native of Philadelphia, Barth moved to Maine in 1960. He graduated from Gould Academy in Bethel and earned a bachelor's degree in metallurgy the science of metals from the Penn State University.

Barth also earned a master's in business administration from the University of Utah and a master's of science teaching from Colby College.

Barth spent 26 years teaching science at Gould Academy and spent one year in Melbourne, Australia, as an International Teaching Fellow in the early 1970s.

He is now retired from teaching and tends his tree farm in Bethel. Barth is a former director of community relations and development at Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway and worked as a technician at the DuPont Co. in Gibbstown, N.J.

He currently serves as a board member for the Maine Mathematics and Science Alliance; chairman of the board for the Maine chapter of the American Diabetes Association; secretary and board member for the Conservation Foundation of Maine and the Maine Conservation School; member of the Bethel Rotary Club and the Kora Shrine Temple; and past master and past district deputy grand master of Bethel Lodge No. 97.

Barth is also a member of the American Tree Farm Program, the Small Woodlot Owners Association of Maine, Sportsmen's Alliance of Maine and is a teacher at the elder-hostel at the Sunday River Inn in Newry.

He is a past secretary of the Bethel Chamber of Commerce, past director of United Way of Oxford County and past president of the New England chapter of the National Association of Geology Teachers.

Barth lives in Bethel with his wife, Lee. He has two children, Bruce and Karl, and two stepchildren, Marcy and Todd.

ROCKIE GRAHAM

By JUDITH MEYER

Merging some state departments and eliminating high-level executive jobs will be considerations for political newcomer Rockie Graham if she wins election to the House from District 49.

The Democrat from Newry is hoping to unseat incumbent Alvin Barth Jr. of Bethel. This is her first run for public office.

Graham believes that balancing the budget is the largest concern facing both the Legislature and the people of the state. She's undecided about whether all of the $300 million in "emergency" taxes, imposed in 1990 to balance the state's budget, should be repealed.

Graham, 44, said she would like to see the emergency taxes "reconsidered to establish whether we can keep some, but not all, and whether we can live without them."

"If we dismantle them, what kind of damage would it do to the state?" she continued, saying many consumers in her district already shop in New Hampshire, where there is no sales tax. She questions what sales tax increases are "doing to working class people."

Graham said that until the Legislature and governor resolve the state's financial problems, cities and towns will not be able to proceed with "fulfilling any of the mandates of the state."

Graham said there is no possibility that any one state program can be eliminated to cover the anticipated

$1 billion shortfall in the upcoming state budget cycle. But she said, "Some of the (governmental) departments can be merged so that some of the high-level, highly-paid staff can be eliminated."

Although Graham does not believe there are any superficial departments in state government, "we've already gotten rid of the frivolous ones, but that doesn't mean there aren't cuts that can be made."

If elected, Graham said she would work toward establishing "some real hands-on job training programs that meet the needs of area employers and we need to help small businesses."

She said Maine businesses must "become more competitive because I think they're the backbone of our economy and I think that's where our jobs are going to come in."

Graham describes health care as "another major issue that I hear as I go door to door. People are concerned about the high cost of health care. We need to make it affordable so people can begin to practice preventive health care, which will result, in the long run, in lower health care costs."

Graham, a native of New York City, has lived in Maine since 1972. She graduated from Baldwin High School in New York and earned a bachelor's degree in community and social welfare and a master's degree in public policy and management from the University of Southern Maine.

She currently serves as co-chairwoman of the advisory board for the Safer Families Program in Bethel and is a member of the Newry Solid Waste Committee.

Graham, an advocate of solid waste recycling, helped organize the Oxford County Regional Solid Waste Corp.

She has served previously as a member of the Child Abuse and Neglect Council, as director of the Maine Nuclear Referendum Committee, as a planning assistant in Bethel and executive director of the Bonney Youth Network.

Graham is also a former statewide health educator and teacher at the Alternative School in Portland and a former adult education teacher for SAD 43 in Rumford/Mexico and 44 in Bethel.

She currently works as the volunteer coordinator for REACH in Norway, where she helps to recruit, train and supervise volunteers for the rape crisis program.

Diamond endorses Rockie Graham

Secretary of State Bill Diamond has endorsed Rockie Graham in her campaign for the House District 49 seat occupied by Alvin Barth.

According to Diamond, "Rockie Graham knows government, and can see both sides of an issue. She will be a constructive, needed voice in the legislature. She is known at the state level as a coalition builder, able to work with people in both parties."

going to compete for jobs and prosperity in the future.

Noting that technical jobs now require more than a high school diploma, Wilfong said the state needs "a pool of employees who have higher skill levels." He also said Maine must provide a good education to all children so that managers and companies moving in from other states will "know their children will be educated."

"We have to keep the small businesses that we have" and work to attract more enterprise to the state.

Wilfong is also drawing support for his small business proposal that would allow business owners to obtain state licenses at the local level.

Wilfong, a native of Massachusetts, moved to Stow in 1955, at the age of eight. He credits his down-to-earth philosophies and a strong work ethic to his childhood years working on the family farm.

He graduated from Fryeburg Academy in 1964 and briefly attended the University of New Hampshire. He is self-employed as president of Wilfong Marketing, a national and international marketing and sales consulting firm. He worked previously in the banking industry in Boston and as director of sales and marketing for Atomic Ski.

He also is a tree farmer, growing an estimated 18,000 Christmas trees on his Stow property.

He and his wife Valerie have been married 17 years. They have two children, Liza, 9, and Christian, 6.

A former Marine, Wilfong describes himself as having "the values of a 19th century farmer."

Wilfong currently serves as chairman of the Stow Board of Appeals and is an active coach in the Babe Ruth baseball program. He serves on the fundraising committee for the expansion of Fryeburg Academy. He is a member of the Parent-Teacher Association, serving with his wife, the group's president.

He enjoys skiing, baseball and reading. He is a founding member of the Jefferson Group, an assembly of Lovell, Stow and Fryeburg residents who gather once each week to hold informal political discussions.

Medicines Used to Treat Hair Loss

In the majority of cases, hair loss in adults is a normal process that occurs with aging. Certain diseases such as lupus and medicines such as those used in the treatment of certain cancers and circulatory disorders can cause temporary hair loss. Exposure to dyes, peroxides, straighteners, and other alkaline chemicals can damage follicles and cause hair loss. Hair loss in children is most likely due to fungal infections, but can occur with nutritional deficiencies, trauma, or congenital metabolic problems.

In both men and women, the most common form of hair loss is androgenic alopecia. This is sometimes referred to as male-pattern baldness, a condition that affects about half of all men by age 50. Skin and hair specialists indicate that male-pattern baldness usually needs no treatment unless psychological effects of balding are severe. Treatment options include hairpieces, transplants, and medicines.

Medicines that have been used to treat androgenic alopecia include estrogens, progestins, cimetidine, dexamethasone, and flutamide. Topical minoxidil (Rogaine) is the most popular medicine used for this type of baldness. Minoxidil seems to work best when applied at the top of the scalp during the early stages of hair thinning. Hair growth may be sparse, and the medicine must be applied indefinitely.

Sally Berry and Katey returned home on Monday after spending the past week with her parents, Larry and Laura Davis in Rochester, N.Y. Bill joined them on the weekend.

The Historical Society met on Monday evening with a potluck supper prior to the meeting. Final plans were made for the Hunter's Family Breakfast to be held on Saturday, Oct. 31 from 5 to 8 a.m. There will be fruit juice, ham or bacon, eggs, pancakes, syrup, home fries, toast and coffee. Sounds like quite a nice breakfast. We like to send the hunters out with full stomachs!

My neighbor Ann was on the prevailing sick list on Monday. Had to cancel her doctor's appointment. Maybe that's why.

I was quite blessed to have our first and only granddaughter (and her mother and brother) come to spend several days with us, and it just happened to be my birthday. What a birthday present.

Last Saturday evening there was a "Round Robin" soccer game held at the OHHS football field. There were two games being played at the same time. It involved the entire district and there must have been 500 kids there! But—what a good place to be. Our third- and sixth-grade team won one, lost one, and tied two. And what a chilly night it was.

Curator Larry Billings of the Historical Society has read a little theology and philosophy. He says he finds some philosophers rather difficult to follow though he can get the general idea. One philosopher implied that most things belong to the past the minute we do them. Even when we have a thought, it is part of the past as soon as we think it. So the past really is always with us. In these confusing times, sometimes just an exchange of ideas helps. Attend one of the Historical Society's meetings. Larry has given a few office supplies to the Society.

The Woodstock Senior Citizens will meet on Thursday, Nov. 5 at the Grange Hall for a meeting and dinner put on by the W.H.S. Alumni Association. Program will be by Hershall Abbott.

Franklin Grange #124 met on Monday, Nov. 2. The program will be Americanism.

Please remember to attend the Historical Society's Open House on Nov. 8.

Larry Billings is starting a private museum in place of his antique shop. He wants to have most of the best types of antiques from our area. In addition, he has exhibits on such aspects of our cultural heritage as art, music, literature, and history. Some antiques are still for sale.

Franklin Grange #124 met on Oct. 19 with 29 members and one guest. Most members came dressed in costume as this was the Halloween Party. They voted to buy a light on the Stephens Memorial Hospital Christmas tree. A vote of thanks to Evelyn Bean for heading the supper and Anna Swan for the decorations she did in the hall. Cards were sent to Olive Davis and Richard and Barbara Felt. The program: song by all; thought for the day: Anna Swan; reading about carving the pumpkin by Pam Moody; songs by Harry Boyer; Charlotte Cole played the guitar and harmonica; prophecy by Irene; game by several; costume parade and judging: first-Larry Risko, second-Lucy Robbins, third-Lindsay Moody; Charlotte Cole, Peggy Blake, Lucy Ridley, Russell Yates and Florence Gustafson; guessing game had two winners; closing thought-Anna Swan and closing song by all. Next meeting will be on Nov. 2.

Our good friend Olive Anderson has been in the Stephens Memorial Hospital since Oct. 21 and should be coming home soon. We wish her good health so she can come bowling with us again soon.

Natalie Berry was surprised at a baby shower Sunday, Oct. 18 at the home of Marjorie Osgood with about 40 friends and relatives attending. She received many gifts and good wishes. The baby, Elise, is almost one month old by now and looking beautiful. Hosting the event and serving goodies were Retta, Marj, and Marylou.

The "Newry bowling gang" were at the Oxford Lanes in Rumford. Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Gil Seeley, Louise Tetley, Ben Lowell and Doris Parent attended. Of the "lefties" Karlene was high on the singles with one string of 130 and also high on the triples with a score of 303. Of the "righties" Louise was high on the singles and also high on the triples. Karlene had six spares and one strike. Betsy had four spares, Gil three spares, Louise three spares and one strike, Ben three spares and Doris one spare. All went to lunch and celebrated my 85th birthday with cake, cards, and gifts. Thank you all (my friends of the heart).

IRS UPDATE
This article is brought to you by Jane D. Gray, CPA
Here's an update on recent IRS activities:
• Every three years, the IRS randomly selects about 50,000 taxpayers for audit under its Taxpayer Compliance Measurement Program. (TCMP). The IRS uses these audits to collect statistical data for its general audit program.
• TCMP audits were scheduled to take place this year for 1991 tax returns. However, the IRS has decided to postpone these grueling line-by-line audits while it completes a reevaluation of the program.
• The IRS has announced the depreciation limits for luxury business automobiles placed into service in 1992. The limits are $2,760 in the first-year, $4,400 in the second year, and $2,650 in the third year. Each succeeding year is limited to $1,575. The IRS adjusts these depreciation limits annually for inflation.
• Recently the IRS issued clarification on the deductibility of FHA and VA loan origination fees. Previously, such fees were deemed nondeductible as payments for lender services rather than deductible as mortgage points. Now the IRS states these fees may be deducted as home mortgage points when paid by the buyer.
• The IRS has reversed a 1991 ruling on the deductibility of business-related tax preparation expenses for sole proprietors, farmers, and taxpayers with rental real estate. The 1991 ruling said such taxpayers could only deduct tax preparation expenses as part of their total miscellaneous itemized deductions on Schedule A (subject to the 2% of adjusted gross income limit).
The 1992 ruling allows these taxpayers to deduct the business portion of tax fees on their business schedules - generally, Schedules C, F, or E. Allowing a business deduction gives the taxpayer a full deduction for the expense instead of subjecting it to the 2% limitation.

East Stoneham

By ELEANOR NELSON

John and Bette Woodbury are having the front entrance to their home re-done and glassed in. It looks real nice.

Bradley Nelson from Winslow and friends were here at his home over the weekend.

David Taylor from Portland had dinner one day last week with Gladys Kilgore.

Arthur Adams is still in the Maine Medical Center, Portland but is getting along better at this writing.

Heidi and Heather Shugars spent the day Saturday with Frances and Bob Grant. Roy Johnson of No. Lovell was in town one day this week with his Raleigh products.

Work on the addition to the Stoneham Rescue Building is progressing nicely.

Johnny Khakonen from Norway was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Grant over the weekend.

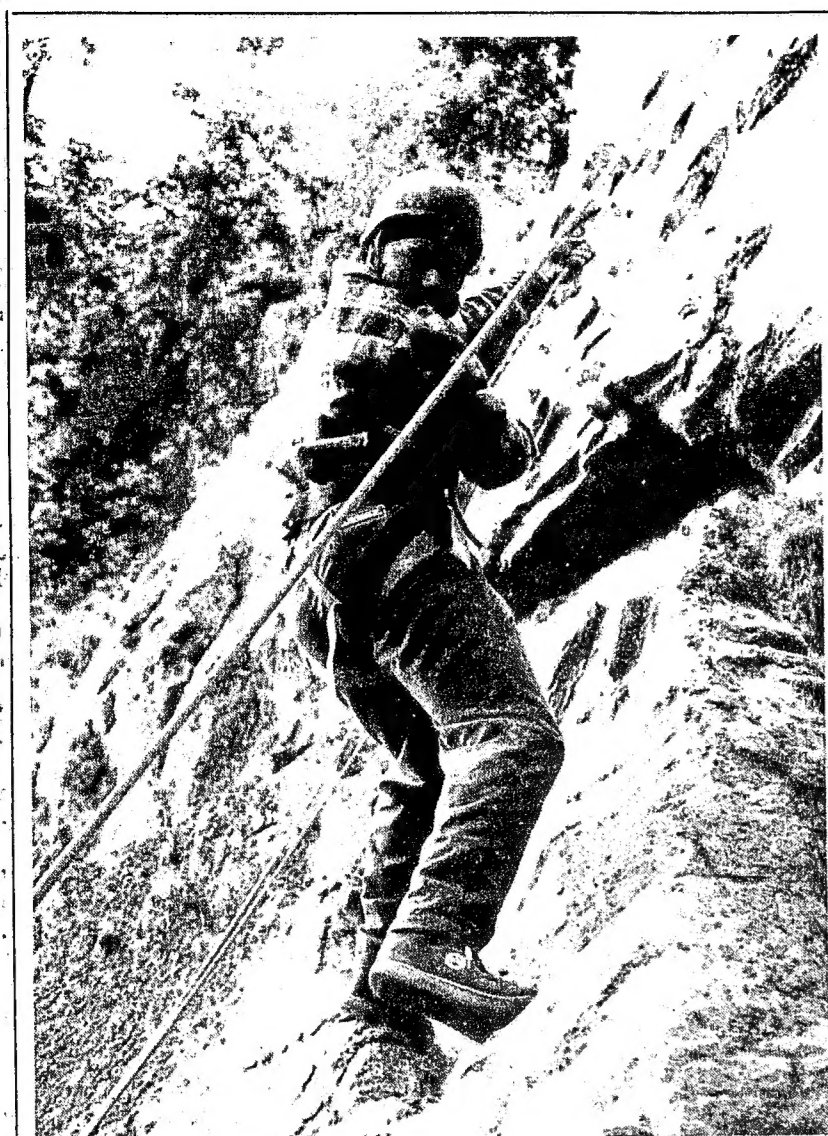

Geneva Tripp took Gladys Kilgore to her doctor in Harrison on Tuesday of this week.

Loretta Andrews went into the Stephens Memorial Hospital on Wednesday to have an operation. She will be there for a few days if you want to send her a card. She is in room 130.

Bob Millett and Arthur Farrar from So. Paris are doing some work for Dale Nelson and building a chimney for his garage.

A lot of political signs are going up through town and I hope that people will take advantage of their privilege to vote come election day.

Happy and safe Halloween Day to you all.

ROCK CLIMBER—Nathan Richards recently tackled rope climbing in Telstar High School's Outdoor Skills Leadership Challenge course. OSLC participants have been involved in a number of activities since school opened. There are currently two groups of students participating in the year-long program, which is in its sixth year. Both groups of students have participated in a rock climb and high ropes course at the Outward Bound Center in Newry. In November, the students will undertake a three-day map and compass program at the Cheaonki Foundation in Wiscasset. The students have also done two-day programs with Telstar Middle School sixth-graders. The sixth-graders are led through challenge programs by two OSLC class members. OSLC teacher Steve Keane said the program gives sixth-graders upperclassmen role models and helps develop listening and group skills.

So. Woodstock

By OLIVE R. DAVIS

Edith Hathaway is in the CMMC in Lewiston at present.

Richard Felt is ill so I was told today.

The Cannill's of West Paris have moved to their trailer home on Curtis Hill.

Franklin Grange held a Halloween party at their Grange meeting last Monday. The members appeared in costumes. Appropriate gifts of small dressed-up pumpkin and apple with ribbon and stars for decoration were presented by the lecturer, Anna Swan, to them who dressed up for the occasion.

Anna Swan and Pam Moody and baby called on Olive Davis on Tuesday with a pumpkin and apple and a pretty card signed by the Grangers for her. Thanks so much for still remembering me. I surely appreciate it so much. I miss attending Grange and have been unable to attend for two years now. I'm glad it is doing so well with good attendance.

Larry Billings, curator reports "The Historical Society points out that our cultural heritage is very important in New England. Subjects like art, literature, music, and history are fascinating and enlightening fields to study."

Don't forget the open house for the Historical Society on Nov. 8. Tours of the museum will be given and there should be some refreshments.

Hunting is upon us, and I'm scared to death. I don't want anyone shooting across my open fields. It is too near the houses and dangerous. I had "no hunting" signs put up and some mean guy tore them down. We put up another lot. I believe I saw just three up so where are the others? Why are people so mean? There are so many bad things happening all over the country. Where are the parents? Why can't they punish their child when need be before they grow up in crime? Now we are being too lenient in caring for youngsters. "Help the Children." But do it right. Keep them out of mischief.

William Burdon was in So. Woodstock doing roofs on Oct. 20.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Verrill were in Leominster, Mass. last weekend to visit their son, Paul and family. Paul became a daddy last August and they wanted to see their grandchild.

Greenwood City

By COLISTA MORGAN

I left my house again today to ride through roads where the foliage was still beautiful.

It was a brilliant fall day, cool but crystal clear.

I watched, listened and smelled the forest, as we rode along. There were bursts of sweet pine and balsam, so strong to our smell at times; that it seemed that it was manufactured. But there is no company in the world that could make a replication of that. It was so rejuvenating and refreshing and offering us a signal to stop.

At all times there were hills, mountains, lakes and color.

Men cleaning their gardens brought these lines rushing through my mind. When I reached home I wrote them down.

I'm happy for the memory/ Of our garden, long ago/ Where I saw my husband's work/ At dusk, using his hoe. His face was as peaceful/ As the twilight's soft glow/ While his eyes carefully/ Surveyed, a complete row/ For his soil was his case/ And the brush was his hoe/ The picture he had finished/ Was a long vegetable row/ He was one of the best gardeners that I ever knew/ No weed dared to lift its head/ To peek at the view/ Upon a canvas how I wish/ I could paint, a masterpiece/ Of my husband in his garden/ At day's end finishing his dream.

I went to West Paris one evening to listen to the speakers who recently went to Finland. Lempi T. Cyr was one of the speakers. She lived here with her parents and sister several years and attended school here. It was an interesting evening. John and Dorothy Betts are in Conway, N.H. for a few days.

Fay Holt had 10 for the noon meal on Sunday. As usual it was delicious. All of the family were there. In the afternoon there were others.

I attended the Retired Teachers meeting at Fryeburg with Little Brooks on Saturday. The program was "Remote Alaska" and the speaker was Rudi Honkala of Bethel. Everyone enjoyed it.

The Greenwood Fire Department will hold its monthly meeting on Nov. 4 at the fire station.

Don't forget to vote on Nov. 3 and don't forget that the Greenwood Fire Department Auxiliary will hold its craft fair on Saturday, Nov. 7 at the fire station.

Once again people have asked where my column has been. I appreciate their asking but not once has anyone offered to give me any items for the column. I can't help but feel that people must get very tired of reading about only my doings. Please send me any items you'd like in the paper, call, or leave a message. If I don't get back to you call again. The answering machine has done better lately but don't always assume that it works. 'Machines are diabolical,' says Ogden Nash, and I agree often with that poem.

Jim and Linda Ryan, Ben and Nick, have been staying at the home of her parents, Val and Caroline Green for a few days vacation.

John and I spent a busy two weeks. We picked our daughter, Marcia, up at Bangor on Oct. 3. That was an interesting experience in itself as we tried to find Sears at the Bangor Mall—we even went the wrong way trying to get to the mall—wrong-way Corrigan has nothing on me. We agreed to put balloons on our cars to help locate each other. The problem was we both waited in different parking lots flying our balloons but we didn't see each other. Finally we decided to leave our cars and go look and then managed to locate one another. John and I enjoyed our 38th wedding anniversary Oct. 9 with a picnic that our daughter was able to share. Then we shared a virus for a couple days only mine extended into an inner ear infection which I've battled for 10 days now. We had planned to go see Mary Mills at Sebago Lake but had to postpone that. Saturday, Oct. 17 we went back to Bangor, this time with Marcia's cat, Jasper, in tow.

We expected a very long ride as Jasper has always hated to ride but Marcia's cousin, Debbie Mundi gave us a few pointers such as withholding food and water for several hours before and so armed with that advice and a couple tranquilizers we took off. To our surprise we didn't even have to use the pills. We covered his carrier with a blanket and he curled up and slept most of the way. This time we met at Sam's Club of which Jon and Marcia are members and it was much easier. To our surprise Jon was right behind us when we turned there. If one had tried to time it that perfectly—he from Presque Isle and us from Locke Mills—we couldn't have done it but that's what happened. Weird! We reluctantly turned over daughter and cat and then explored Sam's Club for a bit. What a place—just enormous. I wouldn't want to be in that in an earthquake. But it was coming into home turf that nearly proved our undoing. We were just outside of Dryden, going up the hill when the sun blinded John and he got off the edge of the newly paved road, could not get back on and we would have rolled over. As it was I very gingerly eased out of the car in order not to jostle it and bring it over on top of me. Then John got out and we got the dog out. I had a camera with me but nothing would induce me to go back in there and get it so I didn't get any pictures. Thank God for seat belts as we would have been hurt without them. The dog was in my lap and I held on so tight his leg was a bit lame but that's all that got hurt except John's pride. We had several helpful people stop—one carload took John to find the garage with a wrecker (on a Saturday after 5 p.m., yet) and we were on our way an hour later—a bit shaky but everything intact.

North Paris

By DORIS C. LAWRENCE

Friday, Oct. 16 I visited Mr. and Mrs. Cleon Pinkham, Doris and I went shopping and had lunch out. Helen Chase and Charlotte Cole brought in some goodies on their way to George and Truth Gibbs for a birthday supper for Helen. She has had quite a few birthday parties.

Fred Oja is at the Maine Medical in Portland and has had surgery. Get well, Fred.

Roberta Hsley attended a funeral in Massachusetts on Monday, Oct. 19.

Wednesday, Joe and Madge Vatcher went to Massachusetts to bring his sister, Fannie Whitten for a visit.

Nov. 2 the West Paris Senior Citizens will meet at Ledgeview Nursing Home for a Thanksgiving dinner put on by the Auxiliary.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Herman Bean. He had been in ill health for quite some time.

Callers have been Sharon Silver, Jenn Felt, Stevie Millett, Mark and Jason Thayer, and Howard Anderson.

Oct. 19 Helen Chase, Dora Dingley and came for supper. Then we played a game of 63. It was fun. Don't forget the North Paris Community Club's last supper on Oct. 31 from 5 to 6 p.m. Ham, beans, mashed potato, peas, squash, salads, rolls, biscuits, and home-made gingerbread with real whipped cream are on the menu. Watch out for the ghosts, bats and goblins.

Andover

By KAREN MCKAY

The Andover Youth Group is sponsoring an All Hallows Eve celebration on Saturday, Halloween, from 6 to 9:30 p.m. Students in grades K-6 are invited to attend. There will be games, costume judging, refreshments and a house of horrors. Trick or treating will take place at 6:30 p.m. to the area stores.

The Elementary School will hold their "Parade of the Horribles" on Friday, Oct. 30. The kindergarten will hold their parade at 9 a.m., Grades 1-6 will parade at 1 p.m. Parents are welcome to join in the event and everyone is invited to attend.

Tickets for the Halloween Dance to be held at the Town Hall are available at local stores and at Davis Florist in Rumford. The music is by "No Strings Attached" and there will be a midnight buffet.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Mrs. Bea Dresser, who passed away last week following a long illness.

Calvary Congregational Church Sunday School was led by Marge Stinson this last week with Jerry Matson, who shared news of Sri Lanka, where the Sunday School sends monies to support and work there among its people. This was Birthday Sunday. We had a lot of October birthdays. The 'Birthday Bank' monies are sent to help missionaries.

Sunday worship with guest speaker Jerry Matson's message: Rev. 22 "God is Sovereign." He is in absolute control.

The choir sang: "Redeemed." The responsive reading was led by Scot Farrington on "Missions." Clarence Bailey led the "prayer and share time."

Many thanks to all who helped out in our Harvest Supper on Saturday night.

Upcoming events:
Oct. 31--AWANA leader's conference in Brewer
Nov. 3--AWANA prayer and planning meeting at 7:30 p.m.

East Bethel

By NANCY MERCER

Bob Hastings, East Bethel's oldest resident, passed away Saturday. Virginia Gamble of Hanover, N.H. had visited Bob and Florence all last week. And other neighbors and friends had visited Bob since his return home from the hospital on Oct. 16.

Alder River Grange #145 thanks all who worked and provided the food and those who enjoyed the supper on Oct. 17. It was a success.

Neil Olson trapped 32 coyote in New Hampshire two weeks ago.

Linda Olson and her daughter, Jill, visited Carrie Olson at U.S.M. in Portland on Oct. 16.

Charlene Haines was in Atlantic City three days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Hastings of Reading, Mass. visited Mr. and Mrs. Warren Hastings on Oct. 17 and 18.

Mr. and Mrs. Andre Bernier hosted a 90th birthday party for Chester Kimball at their home on Oct. 16. Guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kimball, Jimmy Kimball with Vicki Flanders and child, Mariah, Velora Tuominen with children, Breanne and Robin, Ruby Coolidge, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bernier and child, Jennie, of Lovell, Mary Smith, Faye Kimball and the guest of honor, Chester.

George Graves of Camden visited at the Bartlett Homestead on Oct. 20.

Verneta McEachern and Jerry Pinard of Sabattus and Mickie Gahagan of Lewiston visited at the Bartlett Homestead on Oct. 21.

Watch out for the ghosts, goblins, and ghouls this weekend. Happy Halloween!

munity Club's last supper on Oct. 31 from 5 to 6 p.m. Ham, beans, mashed potato, peas, squash, salads, rolls, biscuits, and home-made gingerbread with real whipped cream are on the menu. Watch out for the ghosts, bats and goblins.

Andover

By KAREN MCKAY

The Andover Youth Group is sponsoring an All Hallows Eve celebration on Saturday, Halloween, from 6 to 9:30 p.m. Students in grades K-6 are invited to attend. There will be games, costume judging, refreshments and a house of horrors. Trick or treating will take place at 6:30 p.m. to the area stores. The Elementary School will hold their "Parade of the Horribles" on Friday, Oct. 30. The kindergarten will hold their parade at 9 a.m., Grades 1-6 will parade at 1 p.m. Parents are welcome to join in the event and everyone is invited to attend.

Tickets for the Halloween Dance to be held at the Town Hall are available at local stores and at Davis Florist in Rumford. The music is by "No Strings Attached" and there will be a midnight buffet.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Mrs. Bea Dresser, who passed away last week following a long illness.

Calvary Congregational Church Sunday School was led by Marge Stinson this last week with Jerry Matson, who shared news of Sri Lanka, where the Sunday School sends monies to support and work there among its people. This was Birthday Sunday. We had a lot of October birthdays. The "Birthday Bank" monies are sent to help missionaries.

Sunday worship with guest speaker Jerry Matson's message: Rev. 22 "God is Sovereign." He is in absolute control.

The choir sang: "Redeemed." The responsive reading was led by Scot Farrington on "Missions." Clarence Bailey led the "prayer and share time."

Many thanks to all who helped out in our Harvest Supper on Saturday night.

Upcoming events:
Oct. 31--AWANA leader's conference in Brewer
Nov. 3--AWANA prayer and planning meeting at 7:30 p.m.

East Bethel

By NANCY MERCER

Bob Hastings, East Bethel's oldest resident, passed away Saturday. Virginia Gamble of Hanover, N.H. had visited Bob and Florence all last week. And other neighbors and friends had visited Bob since his return home from the hospital on Oct. 16.

Alder River Grange #145 thanks all who worked and provided the food and those who enjoyed the supper on Oct. 17. It was a success.

Neil Olson trapped 32 coyote in New Hampshire two weeks ago.

Linda Olson and her daughter, Jill, visited Carrie Olson at U.S.M. in Portland on Oct. 16.

Charlene Haines was in Atlantic City three days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Hastings of Reading, Mass. visited Mr. and Mrs. Warren Hastings on Oct. 17 and 18.

Mr. and Mrs. Andre Bernier hosted a 90th birthday party for Chester Kimball at their home on Oct. 16. Guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kimball, Jimmy Kimball with Vicki Flanders and child, Mariah, Velora Tuominen with children, Breanne and Robin, Ruby Coolidge, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bernier and child, Jennie, of Lovell, Mary Smith, Faye Kimball and the guest of honor, Chester.

George Graves of Camden visited at the Bartlett Homestead on Oct. 20.

Verneta McEachern and Jerry Pinard of Sabattus and Mickie Gahagan of Lewiston visited at the Bartlett Homestead on Oct. 21.

Watch out for the ghosts, goblins, and ghouls this weekend. Happy Halloween!

the additions.
"We'll have a look at those work-sheets and then measure it again," Bartlett said. "The camp is on the water and some of the walkways extend out into the water. We have to figure out what has been replaced and what is new."
Bartlett said if a violation has occurred, the town could ask the camp owners to tear down the new structures and pay a fine.
Selectmen and the planning board will complete the fact finding process. The owner of the cottage will be notified of the investigation and asked to appear at a selectmen's meeting to discuss the issue, Bartlett said.

Abandoned trailer?
Selectmen also have another housing problem on their hands.
Last Tuesday, Bartlett stopped movers from installing a mobile home on the former Clukey lot on Bird Hill Road. The trailer is currently parked on the side of the road across from the town office. The owners of the trailer are unknown at this time, she said.
Bartlett told selectmen last Tuesday that earlier in the day an attempt to move the trailer onto the lot was aborted, because the lot's driveway was too narrow.

She intercepted a second attempt in the afternoon. The trailer's owner had no permit to move the home onto the lot, Bartlett said.
"I had talked to the planning board chairman, Wayne Hakala, earlier and he had told me that a person had called him Monday asking about getting a permit," she said.

Hakala told the unidentified caller to come to the Nov. 2 planning board meeting and apply for a permit, Bartlett said.

During last week's selectmen's meeting a woman came into the town office and demanded a permit. The selectmen told her they had no authority to grant her one.

The woman replied "I am going to notify my state case worker and get that permit or move into it right where it is."

As of Monday, Bartlett said the trailer was still parked beside the Bird Hill Road and she has been told some of the contents of the trailer have been removed.

"I don't think the town would want to move the trailer until we give the owner's time to apply for a permit," she said.

W. Paris fugitive surrenders to sheriff

By ANDREW TURNER

A West Paris man sought on a charge of domestic assault turned himself in to Oxford County Sheriff Lloyd "Skip" Herrick on Monday in the parking lot at Oxford Plains Speedway.

Gary Waterhouse, 38, of High Street was convinced by his father to surrender, Herrick said. Waterhouse eluded deputies Sunday morning after they responded to a complaint from his girlfriend, Bonnie Coffin, that he had assaulted her and her 10-year-old daughter at the High Street home they shared with him.

Waterhouse turned himself in at noon Monday. He was arrested and taken to the Oxford County Jail in Paris where he was booked on one charge of domestic assault.

He is scheduled to appear in 11th District Court in Paris on Nov. 9, Herrick said.

municipal appropriation (town expenses), an anticipated increase of $11,000 in revenues and a decrease of $9,000 in its county tax bill.

The town's valuation increased by $1,921,700 for fiscal 1993, to $129,468,900.

Most of the increase in valuation was accounted for by home construction and Bethel Park Apartments, according to Town Clerk Merton Brown.

This year's overlay, the amount raised in excess of anticipated expenses, is $64,146, up from $38,413 for FY 1992.

HOWE QUALIFIES FOR STATE CROSS-COUNTRY MEET

Telstar High School cross-country runner Amy Howe placed sixth in Friday's Regional Western Class C meet in Cumberland. She will compete in the State Class C meet on Nov. 7 in Augusta.

Howe was also named to the Mountain Valley Conference All-star first team, according to coach John Applin.

WE NEED A BREAK!

We are celebrating our busiest summer and fall ever with a break in our normal dining and beverage service beginning Sunday, November 1 through early December.

We will be open for Thanksgiving dinner and that following weekend and for other pre-planned convention activities but our dining rooms and the Mill Brook Tavern will be closed except during these special functions.

Thanks to all who helped make the summer and fall so special:

- The 20,000 customers who stayed with us, played golf with us and dined with us since April.
- The 120 employees who worked so hard to make our resort one of the finest in New England.
- The dozens of suppliers who delivered their services on time at all hours for the comfort of our guests.
- The people of the Bethel area who make our guests feel so welcome in this wonderful part of the world.

Before we know it, we'll be cranking up again to full speed and looking forward to an outstanding ski season. Meanwhile, our reservations desk will be open throughout, busy booking for the winter. We'll also be at your service for Thanksgiving dinner and look forward to arranging your Christmas parties.

Thanks again for a great summer and fall and here's to a terrific winter season for all of us!

From the Bethel Area Chmb. of Commerce

Welcome to our newest members Mahosue Land Trust, Marcel Polak, executive director and to Stuart and Ellen Crocker of Bethel. Stuart is an architect and Ellen has a counseling practice. It is wonderful to have these great folks a part of our growing organization.

All members are cordially welcomed to a Business After Hours to be held at 3 Broad St., Bethel at both Janet Willie's Therapeutic Massage and Attorney Dan Reich's offices on Monday, Nov. 2 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Janet and Dan welcome you to take a relaxing break amidst the pre-election Day busyness!

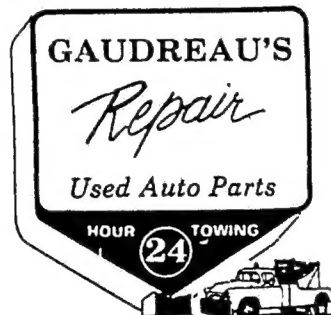

The Bethelopoly Games have arrived. If you would like one for your own enjoyment or for the perfect "Bethel gift" you may stop in at the chamber office or call to reserve yours. The cost is $18 plus tax.

We are moving again. Your chamber staff and a few valued volunteers will be moving the chambers possessions to the former Frank Lowell home on Lower Main St. next to the Mountain View Mall. This will be a wonderful home for the chamber as we will again have the opportunity to "Welcome People" at the gateway to the business district. We are looking for a few items of furniture if you have some to donate. We need: two or three shelving units, a typing table (or something that would be appropriate) and two, three or four foot tables for a computer and printer. Please contact us if you have any of the above items. Thanks!

CONSERV. SCHOOL HIKE

The Maine Conservation School in Bryant Pond will hold its second annual hike up Mt. Christopher on Sunday afternoon Nov. 1, for adults and families. The moderately strenuous hike will take participants from the campus up the "whales back" to the summit for a 2.5 mile walk. Participants will gather at the school's main parking lot for a 2 p.m. departure. A camera and extra windbreaker are encouraged. Further information can be obtained by contacting Buzz Gamble at 665-2068.

DAYCARE/BOWLING CENTER?—Nina Wheeler of West Bethel and Sandy Pond of Albany would like to open a bowling alley, billiard hall and arcade in West Bethel, but first they say they need to prove to their bank that Bethel area residents would support the venture. So Wheeler and Pond are currently conducting a survey asking greater Bethel-area residents what kind of bowling they like, ten pin or candle pin, and if they would like to see bowling come to Bethel. Surveys are available at Preb's Pharmacy in Bethel, the Bethel IGA and Locke Mills Shur-line Store. Wheeler runs a licensed day-care in her home and the new facility would also include a day care center. Hoping for a new home are front row: Gavin Broomhall, left, Abby Gardner, Parker Hanson and Marlena Johnson. Standing: Wheeler and Pond holding Samantha Largess.

OXFORD POMONA GRANGE

The October meeting of Oxford Pomona Grange was held at Franklin Grange, Bryant Pond. The host Grange served a casserole supper to over 50 people.

The fifth degree was conferred on Nina Mollicone and Jim Lowe, Alder River Grange and Pam Moody and Richard Stanley Franklin Grange.

Degree team members were Russell Yates, master with Raymond Tripp Jr., Gail Butterfield, Roger Ellsmore Jr., Randy and Linda Jack, Hazel Conant, Anna Woodworth, Harold Canwell, Lucille Robbins, Peggy Blake, Olive Risko and Dot

Canwell. Assisting were Kathleen second in state judging. Em-McAllister, Lucy Ridley, Myrtle Bisbee, Charlotte Cole, Lettie Brooks, Georgia Herrick and Francis Conant. C.W.A. chairman Myrtle Bisbee reported Anna Woodworth's hand-stitched quilt placed

Hansen

The GOP candidate said the legislature needs to "get off the stick" to support business and Maine people need to elect a representative that understands the need for a more pro-business attitude.

"If we don't do something now, we're going to lose those jobs" to other states, said Hansen.

Hansen supports recently enacted workers compensation legislation, but feels more reform is necessary.

"(They're) predicting cost savings of 12 to 14 percent, yet insurance companies are asking for increases of 30 percent. Obviously, it's only a start."

However, unlike his opponent, Hansen isn't advocating another overhaul of the system.

"This is a great first step. ... It takes the political football away from the politicians and puts it in the hands of the people that benefit from workers compensation: the employees and the employers," he said.

Hansen doesn't feel the new plan will hurt small business and provides a key attitude change in the system.

"What I'm advocating is time. In the State of Maine for the last 20 years we have created an attitude problem with the people, with lawyers, with doctors, with victims of injuries. It starts with companies unwilling to provide safe environment for their workers to work. We need to work on all the attitudes in Maine," said Hansen.

Luther

payback is fantastic," said Luther. "It's a door to opening up industrial opportunity here."

Overall, Luther said prudent investment now will pay back large dividends later.

"States that take the gamble right now, will see the payoff," said Luther.

Luther doesn't support the recently enacted workers compensation law.

"I'm disgusted over what they did with the workers compensation that I'm ready to scrap it and go to the European system, which allows any employee to sue" if negligence is proven, said Luther.

Luther said the Blue Ribbon Commission appointed by the governor combined the worse parts of the Michigan and Texas workers compensation systems.

Luther supports using the entire Michigan plan, which was supported by an independent labor/management group.

Luther said the current plan will hurt small business owners, citing how small business are liable with their own assets under the current plan if Maine Mutual Insurance Company goes under.

Among the reforms Luther supported to the plan include guaranteeing Maine Mutual funds, making employers pick up the cost of employees if the employee prevails in court and that small businesses with five or fewer employees do not have to participate if they maintain their own coverage.

Rotarian Scott Dennis was program chairman at the Tuesday, Oct. 20 breakfast meeting held at the Bethel Inn. His topic detailed how to propose new Rotary members and it was very informative and also amusing.

George Larson reminded the club that Sunday, Nov. 29 is the Fall Pancake Breakfast to be held at Gould Academy's dining hall to benefit scholars.

Dave Preble announced that the citrus sale committee had convened and that information pertaining to prices and sales would be forthcoming soon.

Guests for the morning included Edna Fadden and Donna Coombs of the Bridgton club.

Saturday evening, Oct. 24 found many Rotarians and spouses at the Bethel Inn and Country Club celebrating the 75th Anniversary of the Rotary Foundation. Bruce Powell and his family were honored by the four local clubs (Bethel, Oxford Hills, Rumford and Bridgton) as new Paul Harris Fellows which is the highest honor of Rotary. District Governor Mort Schmidt and wife Brenda and Past District Governor Bob Patten and his wife Stella were there as well. A wonderful tribute to Bruce and his family was given by President Jeff Parsons.

At the Tournamine Music Festival benefit for Jason Rowland last Saturday night in Rumford, he was surprised with a presentation of a brand new drum set. It was given by all his friends, and made possible through the sponsorship of Sonor Drums, Sabian Cymbals, Impact Cases, Portland Percussion, and The Out-look.

In spite of his severe injuries from the stabbing which took place at Dunkin' Donuts on Labor Day weekend, Jason gave an impressive performance on his new drum set, playing with some of the bands.

The event raised a substantial amount of money while providing a wide variety of entertainment for the audience.

CARD OF THANKS
A special thanks from Bill Young for cards, gifts, telephone calls, for helping celebrate his 93rd Birthday.

CARD OF THANKS
Dear Folks,
I have been trying for some time to write you a letter to let you know how grateful I have been for the cards. It has been wonderfully helpful to receive the letters and cards for which I thank you so much.
I hope to do better in the future.
Love to you all, God bless you all

Obituaries

ROBERT D. HASTINGS

Robert D. Hastings, 93, died Saturday morning, Oct. 24, 1992 at the home where he was born and lived throughout his lifetime, which has been identified as the oldest house in Bethel.

He was born May 22, 1899, the son of George and Mae Fifeild Hastings. He attended Bethel schools and graduated from Gould Academy in 1918. He also attended the University of Maine at Orono. Mr. Hastings married Florence Bickford of Bowdoinham on Dec. 18, 1926. A potato and dairy farmer, he managed the family farm as generations before him had done since 1794. In 1966, his son Robert W. Hastings purchased the farm and the two continued the business together until 1989, when Mr. Hastings retired due to ill health. He worked diligently to improve the world around him through participation in various civic, professional, and political organizations. The following are some of his achievements: In his chosen profession, he was bestowed the honor of "Outstanding Farmer of 1946." He was a founder of the Maine Farm Bureau and served as state director for many years. He had served on the advisory committee of the College of Agriculture at the University of Maine, had been a member of the West Parish Congregational Church of Bethel for 74 years, and a member of the Alder River Grange for 70 years.

Mr. Hastings was president of the Oxford County Farm Bureau, president of the Oxford County Extension Association, Master of the Alder River Grange, a selectman and school board member for the Town of Bethel. A trustee of Gould Academy for 25 years and a member of various committees there, he was selected as the Outstanding Alumnus in 1977. For many years he served as Trustee, President and Chairman of the Board of Bethel Savings Bank. An avid reader and recognized local historian, he had been a trustee of the Bethel Library Association and was a member of Bethel Historical Society. In 1973, he was selected to receive the Bethel Chamber of Commerce Citizenship Award.

In recent years Mr. Hastings learned to use a word processor to correspond with family and friends and record his memoirs. In 1991, his book "That Reminds Me" was published and distributed to his children, grandchildren and friends.

Mr. Hastings is survived by his wife; a son, Robert Warren Hastings of Bethel; three daughters, Virginia

Gamble of Hanover, N.H., Mary-Alice Bancroft of Paris, and Ann Morton of Hanover; 16 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held on Oct. 31, at 1 p.m. at the West Parish Congregational Church, Bethel. There are no visiting hours. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made in his memory to the East Bethel Church, c/o Dorothy Bartlett or Floribel Haines, RFD 1, Bethel, Maine 04217. Arrangements under the direction of the Greenleaf Funeral Home, Vernon Street, Bethel, Maine.

In Memoriam

Elsie H. Bryant
Jan. 4, 1899-Oct. 30, 1987

Who could find a virtuous woman?
The heart of her husband was well known in the gates

She did him good and not evil all the days of her life.

She rose while it was yet night-And gave meat to her household.

Her candle of caring did not go out at night

She stretched her hand to the poor and needy.

She was not afraid of snow for her household. They were clothed in scarlet.

Strength and Honor were her clothing. She opened her mouth with wisdom and kindness.

Her husband called her blessed.

Give us this day the fruit of her hands and let her own works praise her in the gates.

Mom- we have not forgotten, nor shall we ever.

Love
Louise & Family
